NEUROLOGICAL THERAPY

Wave Neurological Therapy is a three part system that incorporates a paradigm shift toward the neurological component of soft tissue rehabilitation. We call this discipline Neurological Soft Tissue medicine (NST). The system is based on the belief that all injury is a direct result of the body's inability to absorb force. This inability to absorb force is due to an individual's neurological inability to communicate with muscles fast enough to allow the muscle to absorb force (contract appropriately). EVO ARP Wave Neurological Therapy addresses the neurological origin of physiological symptoms, not the physiological symptoms themselves. The origin of pain or injury is not identified by symptoms; rather, symptoms are simply how an injury manifests itself superficially. EVO ARP Wave Neurological Therapy treats the neurological origin of physiological symptoms, which causes the physiological symptoms to quickly vanish.

STEPS of EVO THERAPY

IN BALANCE:

The ability to demonstrate the functionality of the nervous system using a series of manual tests. If an individual is “out of balance” based on the test, then that individual will be placed back “in balance” by the EVO Professional. An individual’s demonstration of being “in balance” is paramount to the successful treatment of injury.

SEARCH & DESTROY:

The process of locating the origin of the physiological symptoms that individuals experience by identifying electrical disconnects between the individual’s muscles and brain; then, eliminating the origin of the physiological symptoms that individuals experience by eradicating electrical disconnects. This practice reopens lines of communication between cells or between cells and the brain; thus, purging the affected area of inflammation and scar tissue.

STRENGTHEN:

Reacquiring strength/ coordination and the elimination of compensation patterns via implementation of EVO Ultrafit programs and protocols.
